Editor's Note: This is the original Okinawa Hai post on Uniqlo. We published a newer post on this establishment in 2016. We've left all of your original comments in place on this post, but we thought you might want a fresher take on the place.

I like UNIQLO for different reasons.

1. Reasonable prices
2. Simple and stylish designs
3. Comfortable
4. Good sales

UNIQLO is like Old Navy. The place I can afford to buy my clothes! Usually I go to UNIQLO to look for T-shirts, jeans, khaki pants, sweat shirts, or work clothes. They also have cheap belts. I just got a thin bronze color belt only for 1,280 yen.

Try to go to UNIQLO on weekends since they usually have a weekend special sale. Their strength is T-shirts, which they sell from spring to fall. UNIQLO does special collaboration project with designers and comic book artists. Check out their UT site where you can see many cool designer T-shirts. Each T-shirt costs 1,500 yen. They have special pricing for T-shirts. The more you buy, the cheaper they get. If you buy two at once, the price for each becomes 1,400 yen and if you buy three, each is 1,300 yen. Pretty smart. Last year I got "Popeye" T-shirts which I love. This year there are T-shirts with "Astro Boy" cartoon designs.

I recommend their umbrellas, too. They have simple umbrellas for 500 yen! Can't beat that price.

In summer time, they sell yukata, summer casual kimono that many women like to wear to go to the summer festivals or fireworks festivals during summer. I'm thinking about getting a new yukata this year. They usually have a package that comes with an obi and the price I saw last year was good deal.

There are five locations of UNIQLO on the main island of Okinawa.

Two of them are in the area accessible to most people who live near U.S. bases. One is in Gushikawa JUSCO and the other is in the shopping center in Ginowan.
